25X1A

[REDACTED] both from the Office of Training.

Training Officers from the DDI and the DDS&T have advised that it is doubtful they will have any nominations for the NIS either in September or in subsequent runnings.

Trainee assigned to BPAM, has been approved for training in Systems Analysis at the University of California. This particular training appears to be in response to a 15 July Presidential Directive which states "that selected personnel among the Departments and Agencies making up the U.S. Intelligence Community be provided specialized training in advanced studies at a university center or centers where systems thinking and systems skills are understood and imparted, and which at the same time possess adequate background in conventional bibliography and other more classical approaches to literature and information management."

Automatic Data Processing. There has been a substantial increase in the number of ADP programs offered locally with a corresponding increase in Agency participation in these programs. The steady increase in this type of external training is attributed to the gradual automation of the Agency. Within the last two weeks, OTR has received a large number (35) of requests for the executive type of ADP program.

3. Career Training Program

A random sampling of 123 CT declinations out of approximately 369 placed in process during the past 18 months reflects the following:

Accept position in business	41
Accept (or continue in) other government position	33
Continue education	19
Accept (or continue in) teaching position	12
Miscellaneous or unspecified	18
Total	123

It is significant that only 10 mentioned entrance salary as a prime reason for declining employment, and only 5 cited the lengthy waiting period.

Whether candidates stress it or not, Chief/CTP firmly believes that the waiting period is the biggest single factor in our loss rate, particularly during the annual job-negotiation season in April-June. The fact that it takes three to four months to process a case is not anyone's fault; we have had excellent cooperation from every office or unit involved in applicant processing. Our effort is and will be a continuing search for ways to streamline procedures, get more cases earlier into the clearance process, and give priority to the cases in which there is an availability deadline.

4. Intelligence School

Marine School, Quantico. On 13 August Chief, Intelligence School was informed that Jack Smith, Director of Current Intelligence, had received a letter from the Commanding General of the Marine School at Quantico asking him, Smith, to make a presentation there on 31 August. At Smith's request we called the liaison officer at Quantico and learned that the request was the result of an informal suggestion made by General Carter after he had left the Agency. With Smith's approval we suggested to Quantico that the request be re-directed and sent to the DCI. As of 16 August it was our understanding that the Commanding General at Quantico would ask the DCI to give the presentation.

Special Intelligence Orientation - DDP Personnel. Six DDP professionals -- five from TSD and one from [REDACTED] -- successfully completed a special intelligence orientation course during 10-12 August. Included in the group were two senior grade officers, one of whom had been in the Agency for 15 years and had never had an intelligence orientation course.

Lecture at Georgetown University. [REDACTED] spoke on "The Role of Intelligence in Support of National Security Policy" at a Symposium on U. S. Government and Politics sponsored by the Institute of World Polity at Georgetown University on 9 August. The audience of about 150 French professional people (doctors, lawyers, teachers, etc.) are members of a French Christian social action movement called "Vie Nouvelle." They are in this country as guests of the Christian Family Movement, in order to study U. S. institutions. [REDACTED] presented, through an interpreter, a brief unclassified talk dealing primarily with the relationships between policy and intelligence in the U. S. Government. The audience was responsive and respectful, and made no attempt to ask sensitive or embarrassing questions.
